

The restaurant of the Great Northern Hotel of London wins the European Hotel Design Awards for interior design.

The elegant interiors of the Plum + Spilt Milk restaurant of the new and luxurious boutique hotel in London were awarded best interior design project of the year.

Designed by the David Archer Architectural Studio in collaboration with the yoo Design Studio, the recently renovated interiors of this hotel have elicited a great public response, making it one of the new meeting points of the English capital.

In a particular manner – and this prize is the confirmation – the luminous spaces of the restaurant and the exquisiteness of the furnishings signed by Fratelli Boffi have been able to create a magical and refined environment that invites the clientele to linger and to carve out a rare moment of relaxation.

Bathed in natural light, these places are furnished with splendid furnishings created ad hoc by Fratelli Boffi which have given life to environments that are uniform in style but varied in their forms, with benches and chairs of polished Canaletto Walnut upholstered and covered with elegant brown or white leather.

The sinuous shapes of the high-backed benches create undulating space dividers forming mini salons to meet, drink, eat or relax.

Comfortable and welcoming chairs with armrests, where the rounded back shows the prestige, warmth and richness of the wood used, are combined with the tables with turned bases created by the hand-crafted skill of the Brianza region firm.

The cabinetmaking art of Fratelli Boffi is thus the protagonist of this prized production, a further confirmation of the quality of its products and of its work, as well as of that project culture which makes the company a reference point in the contract and made-to-measure project sector.
